Amplifier Game Invest acquires Swedish studio Green Tile Digital

Amplifier Game Invest, a subsidiary of Embracer Group, acquires Green Tile Digital, an independent game studio located in Skövde, Sweden. With this acquisition, Amplifier reinforces their presence in Skövde, strengthening their ties to the strong indie roots of the well established game development community in this Swedish hotspot for game developers.

“We are very happy to announce the acquisition of Green Tile Digital. The team impressed us from an early stage with their clear vision for both their games and their company, together with a strong sense of identity and we are always looking for teams with a long term commitment to building sustainable and successful game studios”, says Per-Arne Lundberg, CEO of Amplifier Game Invest.

Green Tile Digital was founded in 2020, and is a founder-led studio with a team of seven developers who have worked together since 2017. The team aims to build games that forge a creative and inclusive safe-haven where players can express themselves and feel safe to be themselves. The studio will focus on building lasting experiences for PC and Consoles.

“We at Green Tile believe that it is, perhaps more than ever, crucial to build sustainable studios that grow, nurture and attract a diverse range of developers. Not only is this our responsibility as human beings, but our games will no doubt be better for it. We are happy to see that Amplifier is as committed to these values as we are - and I’m looking forward to taking steps toward a better industry together.”, says Ben Clarke, CEO of Green Tile Digital Green Tile Digital becomes a fully owned subsidiary of Amplifier Game Invest AB, joining the ranks of 16 other game development companies already part of the Amplifier group. Amplifier Game Invest is one of the eight operative groups within Embracer Group.
